Clip the coupon good for two free glasses of Golden Orangeade wherever the "True Fruit" sign is displayed.

AUDITORIUM FEATURES.

AUDITORIUM FEATURES.

A typical hot weather show at the Auditorium for the first three days of the week, a show consisting of light comedy all the way through, with nothing of a serious manner in the programme. One of the cutest acts imaginable is dainty, diminutive, dapper Queen Mab and that cunning, cute comedian Casper Weis; these little people, not 36 inches high, are finished performers and their every effort is a hit. The Langweed Sisters have an act unlike any sister act that has been seen here, the comedianne is a scream Kennedy & Kennedy put over several routines of hard shoe dancing that are applause winners, while Joe Burke's makeup alone keeps the audience in a roar. His imitation of Herry Lauder is especially good. Following up King Edward's Funeral, which drew such crowds, the management has secured for Wednesday and Thursday only the great reel in Africa, or scenes made of famous by Teddy Roosevelt. The public is given a chance here to compare this with the nature fake picture put out by the trust a short time ago. The this with the nature fake picture put but by the trust a short time ago. The auditorium has a strong card coming sext week. Watch for it—the best yet.

BREED THEATER.

Ramona, Exquisite Biograph Indian Story.

The feature picture at the Breed theater for the first part of this week is the powerful story of Ramona, as adapted from Helen Jackson's famous novel of the same name. It is a touching portrayal of the white man's injustice to the Indian and is an accurate justice to the Indian and is an accurate representation of the state of affairs existing at the time the story was written. The many exquisite scenes are taken on the exact spots in Ventura county, California, made famous by this great novel and are beautiful beyond description.

The vein of pathos running through the picture is of such extreme tenderness that the audience is held spell-bound during its presentation, and while there is much of an exciting nature this splendid film is relieved of all sensationalism.

It is a romance of great depth and is superbly enacted by the foremost

It is a romance of great depth and is superbly enacted by the foremost delineators of the Blograph staff of peerless actors. Another great feature is the moneter reel of the story of the Discovery of America by Columbus, which is complete in every detail from the soliciting of the funds from the queen to the death of the disheartened discoversr in his cell, while the scenes of the Spanish galleons at sea are of extreme beauty and delight the many spectators. spectators.

No. 957, B. P. O. E., who are going to attend the national convention of the order which is to be hald in Detroit about the middle of July, have a very fine tria mapped out, covering some of the most interesting points between this city and Detroit, says The New Britain Herald.

The New Britain delegation will travel for the most part with the Hartford lodge, which has chartered a special train. They will leave Hartford at 6.30 p. m. on Saturday, July 9 and go over the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. to Springfield, Mass., where they wil change onto the lines of the Boston & Maine, running over them to Albany, via, Greenfield.

From Albany to Niagara Palls the trip will be made over the West Shore road. Sunday will be spent at Niagara Falls viewing the great falls and other interesting features of this notable resort. From Niagara to Detroit the trip will be made over the lines of the Grand Trunk R. R.

The time in Detroit, five days, will be spent in atending the sessions of the convention and enjoying the many banquets clambakes, side trips, receptions, etc., that the brothers of the Michigan city have arranged for their guests.

NEW COURT DEVICE.

Stenographer Walsh of Waterbury Has New Scheme for Transcribing Trial Records.

Court Stenographer Thomas M. Waish of Waterbury has arranged for the use of a complete phonographic outfit for use in transcribing records in the superior court. Lawyers con-nceted with the Sophie Kritchman case secured an idea of the value of the outfit during the progress of that trial, the lawyers and judge receiving their trenscript of the evidence within two hours of the giving of the testimony on the witness seand.

The phonographs are used by the stenographer to dictate into the ear of a girl at a typewriter who takes the evidence down as dictated.

POETRY.

1 REMEMBER.

I remember, I remember,
In the happy days of yore.
Ere old age my brow had furrowed.
And my head had silvered o'er,
Lived a pretty, bright-eyed maides,
Just as lovely as a rose,
With her dark brown, wavy tremes.
And her little turned-up nose.

I remember, I remember,
That with her I fell in love,
Ang did little less I think her
Than an angel from above,
But her father one day told me
That if I ever came there more
Just as sure as he was living
He would boot me from the door.

I remember, I remember,
For a while I staid away,
But one day I met my darling
And so sweetly she did say:
"Come and see me, love, tomorrow,
Come and spend the eve with me,
Parents both away are going
And I all'allone shall be."

I remember, I remember,
Although stormy was the night.
I did go to see my fair one.
With a heart so wasm and bright.
When the door for me she opened
Twas so dark I could not see,
But I hugged her and I kissed her,
Or at least I thought was she,

I remember, I remember,
It was then I felt much bless.
But ere long I did discover
'Twas her mother I did kiss.
One shrick brought the husband,
With a buildog close behind.
And I did find it prudent
From that house to make quick time.

I remember, I remember,
Just exactly how one feels,
Running through the darkness swittly
With a building at his keels.
Although many years I have numbered
Since that fair one I did spark,
Yet I have never since then never,
Kissed a maiden in the dark.
